Raja Ram Mohan Roy was a prominent social reformer and advocate for women's rights in 19th century India. He played a significant role in the field of women's education and made several contributions to improve the status of women in society. One of his major contributions was the establishment of the Brahmo Samaj, a socio-religious reform movement that aimed to promote education and social equality for all, including women. Roy believed that education was the key to empowering women and enabling them to lead independent and fulfilling lives.

In 1823, Roy founded the Hindu College in Calcutta, which was one of the first institutions in India to admit female students. This was a groundbreaking step towards providing women with access to higher education. Roy also advocated for the inclusion of women in the Indian Civil Service and other professional fields, challenging the prevailing societal norms that restricted women's roles to the domestic sphere.

Furthermore, Roy actively campaigned against practices such as child marriage and sati (the immolation of widows on their husband's funeral pyre). He believed that these practices were oppressive and detrimental to women's well-being. Through his writings and public speeches, Roy raised awareness about the importance of women's rights and worked towards their abolition. Overall, Raja Ram Mohan Roy's contributions in the field of women's education were instrumental in challenging traditional gender roles and promoting gender equality in Indian society. His efforts in future social reform movements and continue to inspire advocates for women's rights to this day.

CONTRIBUTION OF RAMMOHAN ROY IN WOMEN EDUCATION:

B)Details of experimental Learning through project work:

1) Semester: 6th.

2)Subject Name : EDCG

3) paper name : DSE B2

4)Project name : CONTRIBUTION OF RAMMOHAN ROY IN WOMEN EDUCATION

5) FM for project :15 marks.

6)Project details and including its aim.

Raja Ram Mohan Roy was a prominent social reformer and advocate for women's rights in 19th century India. He played a significant role in the field of women's education and made several contributions to improve the status of women in society. One of his major contributions was the establishment of the Brahmo Samaj, a socio-religious reform movement that aimed to promote education and social equality for all, including women. Roy believed that education was the key to empowering women and enabling them to lead independent and fulfilling lives.

In 1823, Roy founded the Hindu College in Calcutta, which was one of the first institutions in India to admit female students. This was a groundbreaking step towards providing women with access to higher education. Roy also advocated for the inclusion of women in the Indian Civil Service and other professional fields, challenging the prevailing societal norms that restricted women's roles to the domestic sphere.

Furthermore, Roy actively campaigned against practices such as child marriage and sati (the immolation of widows on their husband's funeral pyre). He believed that these practices were oppressive and detrimental to women's well-being. Through his writings and public speeches, Roy raised awareness about the importance of women's rights and worked towards their abolition. Overall, Raja Ram Mohan Roy's contributions in the field of women's education were instrumental in challenging traditional gender roles and promoting gender equality in Indian society. His efforts in future social reform movements and continue to inspire advocates for women's rights to this day.
